

Dear Mother

I am very sorry to have kept you so long without a few lines. I have been quite well ever since Dad left, and my arm is better than ever, in fact all the wounds are healed up except one, and that one looks very clean. I am really tired of doing nothing all the while, and it is making me too ~~long~~ even to ~~write~~ write. The sooner you send those ~~to~~ shoes on to me, the better, because I do not want to fall down on these polished floors and hurt my arm if I can help it. I hope you are all quite well, & please do not worry the least bit about me, because I am quite alright again.

love to all

Jack
